Program Description

Participants will undergo 08 sessions of about 90 minutes each, every weekend of the month. The sessions will consist of an energetic warm up, training on the floor and later, on the climbing wall. The participants will get the opportunity to see their improvement each day as their performance improves in the various activities. Since the sessions are only on weekends, all people can join in and learn gradually.

What is an Artificial Climbing Wall?

Artificial Climbing Walls are structures with grips and holds which attempt to give the climber a rock climbing experience in a safe and controlled environment. Wall Climbing was originally practised only by experienced mountaineers for scaling technical sections of peaks. But today it has evolved into a leisure sport that people pursue for fitness, adventure, recreation and even for improving mental health.

Who can benefit?

Anyone is suitable for and will benefit from our program.

- Housewives neglect their health while providing dedicated service to spouses and children. They can jumpstart their fitness and eventually improve overall health.
